The “GEMS to Jewels”, program is running very smoothly, the girls attended a luncheon at Ruby Tuesdays and really put their skills from the Etiquette Session to use. The feedback from parents has all been positive telling us they are practicing their lessons at home, sometimes correcting them. This program is very open and involves any parent who wishes to be a part of it. We have a father and two mothers who sits in the classes and co-facilitated the “His and Hers” session. It was nice to see them role play as they spoke to the girls about being their age and the peer pressure from others. Another parent was a guest speaker for the “Healthy Living”, talking to them about healthy eating and hygiene. Each girl left the session with a package filled with hygiene products to use at home, some of the items in the packages included toothbrushes, toothpaste, mouthwash, lotion, altoids’, dental floss, soap, deodorant, nail polish, lip gloss and many other items.

The advocate is continuing towards her Family Development Credentials in Fulton twice a month; she also attended the Mandated Reporter Training. Due to the number of people who are having their SNAP benefits being cut, the Family Advocate has been assigned to come up with a program to assist them. She was introduced to and is working with Syiesha Byrd, Director of the Office of Engagement programs at Syracuse University and a parent on assembling a workshop for community residents on couponing and budgeting. These workshops will assist people in stretching their benefits with great savings. Ms. Byrd also provides students the opportunity to engage in different programs that focus of social justices issues all while building sustainable long lasting relationships. The workshop has been advertised with flyers in the neighborhood grocery stores, shared with all the Family Resource Centers and a client announced it her radio show.

The Coordinator attended United Way along with various other non-profits for their Gifts in Kind program and picked up items for clients. She is co-facilitating the GEMS to Jewels program with Syracuse University intern on Saturdays from 10:00 AM to 1:00 PM. She continues to work with the Gifford Foundation on the second “Nourishing Tomorrows Leaders” classes. The first program was received so well and had excellent results. Due to the high demand of learning what it takes to serve on a board, the program will be run again for six weeks. She was invited to tour a vacant facility at Huntington Family Center about possible program collaboration and attended the monthly community meeting for the Near Westside and the monthly coordinators meeting.

Community Concerns

Shoveling of sidewalks

SU students parking taking up space from businesses

No activities for youth on weekends

Respectfully submitted,
